HELD UP BY THE GIRLS. A dispatch from Hempsiead, L. I., says the topic of conversation there for three days has been the holding up of two prominent men of the village, Edward Vanderwater and William Cor-nelius, both sons of village officials.

The robbery occurred in one of the principal streets of the village last Monday night, but the sensational features of the case were not made public until Thursday morning.

Vanderwater and Cornelius have been very attentive to Josephine Beek-man and Sarah Dogan, pretty girls, eighteen years old, and during their calls recently had often ridiculed sever-al constables for their cowardice in fail ing to capture two tramps who had held up two young men near the Meadow-brook Hunt Club house. They had boasted that if highwaymen attacked boasted that it nighwaymen attacked them the robbers would fare badly. They had made this boast so often that the girls thought it would be a great scheme to put the young men's great scheme to put the young men's courage to the test.

The girls invited Vanderwater and Cornelius to call on them together at half-past eight o'clock last Monday evening. The girls before the appointed time arrived, dressed in Beekman's brother's clothing, put on slouch hats and false beards, and then hid in bushes at the roadside at a spot the young men at the roadside at a spot the young men must pass on their way to make their call. The highway was dark at this point, the electric lights having been New Sash, Door and Frame Factory, extinguished.

Vanderwater and Cornelius soon came along, chatting and laughing. They were confronted by two figures and pistols were levelled at their heads with the demand, in muffled tones, to give up their valuables immediately.

Vanderwater made and effort to run, but tripped and rolled into the mud and water by the roadside. He instantly sprang to his feet and ran to Cornelius's home.

Cornelius, however, fell on his knees and begged piteously for mercy. His plea was disregarded. He was told to shut up and hand over his money.

He at once produced his watch, rings and money. After relieving him of his valuables the robbers told him to begone. When Cornelius reached home he was nearly exhausted and so fright-ened he could scarcely walk. He and Vanderwater held a consultation as to what should be done about the matter. While they were discussing the affair friends who had gathered at the house on hearing of the occurrence, the girls who had played the joke on them walk-ed in, attired in their proper garments and upbraided them for not making their promised call. The girls pretended to be offended. The young men made all sorts of ex-cuses for their absence. After thoroughly enjoying the men's embarrassment.

Miss Beekman and Miss Dugan asked Cornelius what time it was. As his watch was missing this led to many other excuses. The girls then handed Cornelius his watch and valuables, adding that the next time he was held up he ought to act like a man and not fall upon his knees and beg for mercy.

The young men have abandoned their usual haunts on account of the cook and window Frames, Mould many taunts they have received in regard to their bravery in defending themselves against highwaymen.

The wife of Mr. Leonard Wells, of East Brimfield, Mass., had been suffer-ing from neuralgia for two days, not being able to sleep or hardly keep stil, when Mr. Holden, the merchant there, sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Pa'n Balm, and asked that she give it a thorough trial. On meeting Mr. Wells the next day he was told that she was all right, the pain had left her within two hours, and that the bottle of Pain Balm was worth $5,000 if it could not be had for less.
